We have represented producers, exporters, importers, associations and users. In a number of the cases mentioned above, we were able to obtain the best possible result for exporters, i.e., a zero duty rate or termination of the case. In some instances, we worked with the exporter(s) to negotiate an undertaking with the European Commission that allowed our client the maximum possible export freedom following the end of the proceeding. Importantly, in all anti-dumping cases in which we have represented exporters, the final result has been far more commercially favorable than if the company had found itself subject to the residual dumping duty.
